

Hi,

my name is Maciej. I am an expert in manual functional testing with over thirteen years of experience in different business domains. I have worked on complex projects with teams distributed all over the world. In my work I always combine business and technical knowledge. I try to see the big picture and then break it down to smallest pieces. This gives me the power to efficiently plan my test activities, dig up the root cause of any bugs spotted and clearly communicate with all parties in the team, from top management to dev geeks. I never follow rules blindly and always question everything. "How" and "Why" are my two buddies that help me break software more efficiently.

If you accept a person that is passionate about learning new things, open minded, paying attention to details and with 'can do' attitude then feel free to contact me.

Cheers,

Maciej
